

Modern Pentathlon

Venue: Greenwich Park

Dates: Saturday 11 August to
Sunday 12 August 2012

Modern Pentathlon is believed by some to have its origins in a 19th-century legend. It is said that a young French cavalry officer was sent on horseback to deliver a message, and that to complete his mission he had to ride, fence, shoot, swim and run. These are the same five challenges that face competitors in today's Modern Pentathlon, which was introduced to the Games in 1912 by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, the founder of the modern Olympic movement.

The stunning, historic Greenwich Park will host the riding element, for which pentathletes have to ride unfamiliar horses around a course with 12 jumps, and the combined event, which features running and shooting. Team GB's women have won four medals in the three Olympic Games since a women's competition was introduced in 2000. Make sure you're there to see the action unfold against one of London's most beautiful backdrops.

Prestige Ticketing will be providing what promises to be a world-class, unrivalled hospitality experience, with exclusive on-site packages for all the events within the grounds of the Park and close to the action. An experience never to be forgotten!
